

Continuous Fresh Delivery of Organic Ideas

Just as we rode out the dot-com crash, so our smart business strategy with a high concentration on customer demands continues to keep our company solid in difficult financial times. We have always paid attention to costs and cash flow, so there was no rude awakening for us. As many of the other vendors have disappeared or discontinued their products, we are enjoying a renaissance of migration business. Our profits are quickly growing along with the services of our customers: in 2009, we achieved a consolidated EBITDA of well over 1 million Euros.

And we're closer than ever to making our technology available not just to ECT and our customers, but to the entire telecommunications industry. We're today implementing the tools necessary to open up ECTXML® to all third parties, the prerequisite for its establishment as the industry standard for multimedia services. And of course we're curious what we'll be hearing and learning from customers, new and old, who are looking for strong revenue-generating solutions and a future-ready partner for mutual success.
